SEPTEMBER 2024

Message from the Dean

MARY FARMER-KAISER, PH.D.

Welcome to Fall 2024. I'm so glad that you're here!

Creating a place where grad students thrive remains our mission, and we've made significant investments as we prepared for 2024-2025. The University has committed the largest single-year increase in direct support to graduate students in decades (maybe ever). We've boosted minimum stipend levels for assistantships and fellowships, enhanced support for K-12 educators and nursing professionals, and doubled funding for doctoral student research and travel. Employees pursuing grad degrees now can enjoy tuition exemption for our online programs. Most importantly, we've welcomed one of our largest cohorts of new faculty, for they too are an investment in expanding high-quality, accessible graduate education at our University.

This Fall, we are also welcoming our largest class of new doctoral students ever--no doubt a reflection of these investments.

Thriving in grad school requires more than financial resources. It demands inspiration, accountability, and community. Faculty mentors who encourage and guide you through challenges and uncertainty are invaluable. Even the Shopper Shuttle, taking you to Walmart on a Friday afternoon, meets a real need for our many grads. We recognize there's more to be done, and we're committed to continuing our efforts to resource you for success.

Now I need you to fully invest in yourself and each other. This means more than staying on top of your studies. It means actively seeking support and opportunities that will propel you forward. Connect with faculty. Engage with peers. Make use of all the resources designed for your success. Take ownership of your journey and push beyond your comfort zone. You and your future are well worth the investment!

Let's make this year one of growth, discovery, and even more meaningful progress!

Dr. MFK

"Equally critical to our research and academic missions are our graduate students. We call them students, but they are more than that. They are mentors and teachers in the classroom. They are out in the field and in labs doing research. They are examples of professionalism and responsibility."

Statistical Consulting Center

The Statistical Consulting Center offers statistical consulting to UL Lafayette grad students and faculty on research involving statistical methods.

Successful research requires planning. Contact Dr. Whitman and his team as early as possible as you plan and conduct your research. They will listen to your needs and work with you to understand the questions and objectives of your study. They will actively participate and help you formulate your problems in terms of statistical questions. They are ready to help you solve those problems, and work with you until the solutions are reasonable and understandable. They also will discuss with you what can, and cannot, be achieved using modern statistical methods.

Due to time limitations graduate students receive priority in scheduling.

Do NOT wait until the last minute to contact the Stats Center.

There could be a backlog later in the semester.

Schedule your initial consultation now!
