

Blueprints for Success

By: Emma Guillot

Emma Guillot faces new challenges as she juggles her freshman year at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette. The novel, framed through the perspective of an architecture student, tackles her journey of making new friends, rediscovering old hobbies, and trying to find balance amid a whirlwind of studio hours, rubber cement fumes, and existential crises. From her heavily anticipated move in day to tackling relentless artistic burnout that only a hundred design revisions can bring, the novel follows her through the highs and lows of a creative's first semester in college. Through her slice of life style of writing, Emma invites readers to join her on her discovery that growing up isn't always about having everything figured out— it's about knowing the proper technique to cut foam.

Emma Guillot, a native of New Iberia, Louisiana, has always drawn inspiration from her older sister while carving her own path. As a first-generation college student, she is navigating her first semester at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette, where she is pursuing a Bachelor of Science in Architectural Studies. With aspirations to earn a Master of Architecture after graduation, Emma combines her passion for learning with her lifelong love of the arts. She is determined to channel her creativity and technical skills into designing spaces that inspire and connect people, reflecting her dedication to both education and artistic expression.
