Sarah Krishna

Biography

Sarah Krishna was born in Monroe, Louisiana and grew up in the small town of Rayville, Louisiana. She was born into a family of mixed ethnicities in which her mother is from the United States and her father is from Pakistan. Sarah is currently enrolled as a student at the University of Louisiana located in Lafayette, Louisiana. She is pursuing a degree in mass communications with a concentration in journalism in hopes of becoming a freelance travel blogger. Sarah aspires to write about her experiences and the cultures of different countries while serving as an international missionary. After settling down and obtaining dedicated viewers, Sarah will focus her writing on analyzing secular topics or issues through a Christian perspective. Eventually, she would like to own and operate her own book store.

Summary

For years, Sarah harbored dreams of transitioning from high school to college, anticipating that leaving her hometown of Rayville, Louisiana, would also mean escaping the internal turmoil she had long neglected. However, this assumption proved to be far from true. What unfolds is a narrative of personal growth. While not every chapter ends in triumph, each one culminates in a fresh revelation. It is crucial to recognize that personal growth is impossible without spiritual growth. Sarah grapples with the dilemma of compromising her soul for societal approval and wrestling with perceiving herself through the corrupted lens of the enemy rather than embracing the way God intended her to be. Throughout her first semester, Sarah confronts tough decisions, navigates college courses, forges new friendships, and contends with the uncensored secular world. Each challenge is met by a young woman sustained by the grace and strength of her Creator.
